

Professional Advice From Alumnae

12/7/2007

Students at Owego-Apalachin Middle School get an expert lesson on choosing a career path.

During career day, students heard from Buffalo Bills team doctor Dr. John Marzo, who is also an Owego Free Academy graduate.

Marzo recently made national headlines when he cared for Buffalo Bills tight end Kevin Everett, who sustained a spine fracture during an NFL game.

Bridget Quaranta, an OFA 8th Grader, says, "In high school they start getting you thinking about your careers and you have to make choices. So it's better if we do it now so you have a pretty good idea and then go to high school and have it all set up."

Students got career advice pertaining to more than a dozen professions.

 VIEW VIDEO

Email Article | Print Article | Back

News system programming and video streaming by EFX internet

